

New updates to Feeds

Two small upgrades that take the friction out of getting your data into Feeds.

Pick the right Excel tab

Uploading a multi-tab workbook? You can now choose exactly which tab feeds your data. When your file has more than one tab, we'll show a dropdown so you can pick the right one up front — no more silently defaulting to the first tab or rearranging your spreadsheet to make it work. Single-tab files just work as before, with no extra step.

Hex codes that just work

Mapping colors from feed data no longer means adding a # to every row by hand. We now automatically detect valid hex codes like FF0000 and apply the # for you, so your colors render instantly. Values that aren't hex are left untouched, and anything already prefixed stays as-is.
